These cabbies just don't fit the molds

By Paula Monarez

They don't look like the stereotypical taxi cab driver.

Their cars are spotless. They dress neatly. And they won't even swear at drivers in other cars.

Yet these clean-cut cabbies, who work the valley streets, do the job they're supposed to do — get passengers to their destination.

"People usually try to get me to speed," said Gary Burnett, a Rancho Cucamonga cab driver. "Or they expect me to go around to the left side or the right side of traffic. But I'm not going to risk their lives, my life and getting a ticket to get them somewhere faster."

Sorry, no New York cabbies here

Burnett works for Yellow Cab Co., located in Pomona. The company has cornered the cab market in the valley, offering service from Fontana to Diamond Bar and Los Serranos to Mt. Baldy.

About 100 cabbies drive for Yellow Cab. With their handy Thomas Bros. Guide maps nearby, the local newspaper on the seat and a cup of coffee in hand, these drivers take people anywhere they want to go.

Becoming a taxi driver takes more than just jumping in a cab. A person must obtain a taxi permit from Pomona City Hall, andgo through five hours of orientation and training. They also take the Thomas Bros. Guide test and learn basic radio procedures.

"We also require that they turn in a (Department of Motor Vehicle) printout," said Jay F. Camp, who is in charge of the Yellow Cab drivers.

Cab drivers don't own their taxis. They lease the vehicles from Yellow Cab. The company provides cab maintenance, insurance and dispatching service.

Although passengers at the Ontario International Airport are a lucrative business for taxi cab drivers, it's the regular person on the street who is their mainstay. Cabbies are often hired to take children to school, drive older people to doctor appointments and get expectant mothers to the hospital on time.

"We take about 60 calls an hour," Camp said. "Our busiest night is New Year's Eve. We also get a lot of business on the first and 15th of every month. That's when people get their welfare checks. Most don't own cars so they need someone to take them to the grocery store."

Because they are independent contractors, drivers work their own hours. Most prefer the 14-hour shift.

"I've been doing this for eight years," Burnett said, as he made his way down Mission Boulevard. "It's a really nice job because I get to go to a lot places. I get to meet different people and I'm primarily my own boss."

Educators lend support to equal student funding

By Natalie Shore

The state should spend the same amount of money on each student, say local educators who are urging lawmakers to equalize California's education funding formula.

Area educators are supporting in concept at least six bills currently before the Legislature to replenish equalization funding begun in the 1970s.

Without that money, 10 out of 14 local districts will remain below the state average in the amount of state money they have to spend on each student, schools officials said.

"That's saying some children in the state deserve more money for their education than others," said Kathy Kinley, spokeswoman for Ontario-Montclair schools.

Equalization money, which has been reduced during recent years, has been completely eliminated from the governor's proposed 1989-90 budget.

Individual districts and a coalition of San Bernardino County schools are lobbying the Legislature and the governor to reinstate the program, said Anthony Lardieri, Fontana schools superintendent and co-chair of SANDABS, San Bernardino County District Advocates for Better Schools.

"We've got to get some uniformity into how education is funded. There is no real plan in place right now, there's no base funding," Lardieri said.

General plan given equivocal support

By Richard Peraza

SAN BERNARDINO — Divided to the end, the San Bernardino County Planning Commission Thursday gave the new updated general plan its preliminary approval — but with a split vote.

"Hey, it's not ready yet. It's not cleaned up," said Commissioner Russell Easterday, who cast one of two dissenting votes.

"I'm concerned about completion of the entire process we're going through. I don't see a need for a preliminary recommendation," he said.

He noted the accompanying environmental impact report, due in January, was received by planners late last week and they're still reading it in preparation for an April 18 public hearing on that document.

Commissioner Jerry Mackley joined Easterday in dissent.

about completion of the entire process we're going through. I don't see a need for a preliminary recommendation."

saying the commission hasn't even determined yet if the new general plan's more-stringent requirements will be applied to development projects already "in the process."

Most other commissioners shared that concern, some of them saying projects already in progress before the county Board of Supervisors adopts the new plan — scheduled May 1 — should be allowed to develop under old requirements.

"What I'm talking about is fairness and equity," said Chairman Garey Teeters. "There's mountains of material and it was difficult to get ahold of. I'm just concerned we don't have the traps out there prepared for the kill."

But the majority of commissioners were keenly aware their recommendation was due March 9 and county supervisors will be expecting it when they receive the document Monday in preparation for their own series of public hearings.

"They (supervisors) are looking for some tentative direction from us," Commissioner Michael Dombroski said.

"They can open it just like we did," countered Easterday. He said the general plan didn't have to be accompanied with a recommendation.

"We've pretty much got to give them something. We have an obligation to make some kind of recommendation — as long as it's understood it's preliminary and not final. I underline that in red," said Commissioner Ray Ferguson.

Commissioners are due to make their final recommendation on the plan and its EIR April 20.

They emphasized several times their recommendation is preliminary and not binding until they finalize it next month.

"The process of overlapping is unusual already," county Planning Officer Sharon Hightower said.

Normally, the commission would be through with the documents before relaying them to the Board of Supervisors, she said.

Burn victims look forward to camp

By Lee Peterson

It's one summer camp the counselors say the children never want to leave.

This June, the weeklong camp sponsored by the Alisa Ann Ruch California Burn Foundation in the mountains east of Fresno will welcome about 100 kids who are burn victims.

Locally, camp organizers are looking for children ages 5-18 who have been injured in a fire and would like to spend a free week at the rural camp. The week ends with a day at Disneyland.

At the camp, the children will have the opportunity to ride horses, swim, ride mini-bikes, canoe and play volleyball, softball and table tennis.

And in the midst of all the activity, counselors hope, the children will become less self-conscious about their scars.

"What we are trying to do is give the kids some selfconfidence," said Kim Aguayo, a volunteer camp counselor.

Some of the children are at the River Way Ranch Camp, one hour east of Fresno, for the first time, while others are veterans.

The volunteer counselors at the camp all are fire service personnel like Aguayo, the public education coordinator at the Foothill Fire Protection District.

Camp organizers are looking for children from the valley area to go to the camp, June 17-25. The Disneyland trip is on the 25th. Last year, 79 children from all over California attended the camp, and this year there is room for 100.

Aguayo said reunions are held each year between the camp counselors and children, who join for Christmas parties and a night at a Los Angeles Dodgers game.

The Burn Foundation also is looking for donations to pay for the camp, as the cost for each child is $425. For more information on donations or registration for the camp, call (818) 883-7700.

Research now available from local libraries

By Jessica Ellman

A new reference service will allow cities, businesses and residents to get in-depth reports and research for a fee out of their local libraries.

Beginning in July, all 91 branches of Los Angeles County libraries will offer the new service, called FYI.

"It really is a question of time or money. Lots of people don't have the time but have the money," said director of the program Steve Coffman.

"We've noticed over the last number of years an increasing demand for service to handle specific research.

"It's consistent with the county's and the libraries' objective to be able to provide an enhanced level of access without costing the taxpayer additional money," he said.

The county Board of Supervisors approved the program last week and had authorized $60,000 last November to start up the project. Libraries always have provided limited research services and will continue offering the same level of service free, Coffman

But when someone comes in and asks for a large amount of specific information, such as the number of new businesses started in a city during the past 10 years, librarians only can show customers where to find the information.

Mets outfielder Darryl Strawberry and California Angels pitcher Mike Witt.

They're both pretty good tippers," he said.

His craziest fare, literally, occurred while picking up a passenger from a local mental hospital. The woman wanted to be driven to her home in Orange County. Upon arriving at the destination, Burnett was alerted that his passenger had escaped from the hospital.

'I had to drive her all the way back," he said.

Most cabbies not only like driving, but chatting with their passengers.

"You'd be surprised at the people I meet," said Mike Michini, a 28-year-old from Ontario. "I met a man who developed a process to filter out the pollution in the air.'

While they enjoy the work, cab drivers are aware of the dangers in picking up strangers and giving them a ride. Robberies are not uncommon.

All read with interest last year the Los Angeles cab driver who was killed after picking up a fare at Los Angeles airport.

"I take precautions," said Patrick Greene, who's been driving since last October. Sometimes I go into neighborhoods I wouldn't want to go into at noontime. But I make sure I let the dispatcher know where I am at all times.

Camp said dispatchers monitor all of cabbies' movements and each driver knows codes they can use in case of an emergency.

No one cares more about cab drivers than Don DeMille. The 59-year-old dispatcher has been routing taxis through the valley since 1965.

'He's as close to an air traffic controller as you can get," Camp said. "He not only knows every street in the area, but can tell the cross street and what store is on the happy, get the customers a taxi and the drivers a fare," said DeMille, who stresess he is no relation to filmmaker Cecil B. DeMille. "I find the work a challenge. The clock is the driver's enemy. Driving is their bread and butter. You also have to get the correct address from the customers. Sometimes you have to dissect them to find out just where they're at.

Now, for a fee, someone can have county personnel do the looking for them

We could put that list together and fax it to them, express mail or mail it to them.

'Until now there has been no service. There always was a telephone reference for minor questions and will be," he said.

The cost varies by requests, but is based on a $65.47 per hour

There is a large market for the service in the area, said Wilbert Hunt, community library manager at Diamond Bar Library.

People right now are paying a great deal. I can see them going to libraries. The more information available the better for the public," he said.

He projected that small businesses would be the most active users of the program.

'Let's face it without information a business can't make it. They can't afford their own systems. To remain competitive, you've got to have information," Hunt said.

Even in a $70 million budget. the more than $600,000 Fontana schools would receive would improve the quality of education for students, Lardieri said.

"That's 15 to 20 more teachers for us," he said.

Local schools stand to gain an estimated $4.6 million for the 1989-90 school year if equalization funding is renewed. The program would require between $118 and $125 million dollars to be funded statewide.

The money would bring the projected 1989-90 average daily attendance revenues of those school districts up to the statewide average of: $2,520 A.D.A. per elementary school district; $2,662 A.D.A per unified district; and $3,105 A.D.A. per high school district.

Before equalization funding, schools districts in affluent communities had more money to spend per student than poorer communities had, said Barry Pulliam, deputy superintendent for the San Bernardino County Superintendent of Schools.

"Kids' education was being supported at different rates because of the areas in which they lived," Pulliam said. A lawsuit involving Beverly Hills and Baldwin Park school districts proved that, he said.

es this dentist's dig

By Suzanne Sproul

Dr. Douglas Wyler of Diamond Bar really digs mummies.

Exploring Egyptian archaeology sites and trying to piece together missing parts of long-ago lives is this San Dimas dentist's hobby of sorts. Although he has traveled to Egypt to participate in that country's sponsored digs since 1982, it's much more than just playing golf.

'I act as the physical anthropologist or the forensic anthropologist. I'm not just looking at the teeth on these mummies," said Wyler, who enjoys scuba diving and skiing in his off hours.

Instead, Wyler and the team of researchers associated with the Brigham Young University project try to find answers about how these people lived and, by examining their bodies, how and why they died

It's quite unusual work for Wyler, who joins the team for about a two-week period every February. Not everyone comes face to face with a 2,000-year-old Wyler said he was lucky enough to be asked to join the team, and during the years he's taken physical anthropology courses at Cal State Fullerton. And in addition to his San Dimas dental and orthodontics practice, he also is part of the mass disaster team with the Los Angeles Coroner's Office.

"It's something that is different and is a lot of fun," he

The work also is tedious and dirty. Most of Wyler's work has been done in a particular 400acre Egyptian cemetery where the bodies are between 1,500 and 2,000 years old. About 150,000 people are buried there, and so far in its research the team has excavated about 300

"All the work is done with the permission of the state and we have armed guards watching us all the time. There's also a state inspector who works along with us," Wyler said.

Most of the bodies are buried in chamber tombs, some in ceramic coffins and some in wooden coffins.

And although finding out how these people lived is an important aspect of the work, Wyler said, the team also hopes to determine differences between pagan and Christian burial practices and date when Christianity began in Egypt.

Is he worried about any possible curses?

"No." he said with a laugh. "I don't believe in curses so they don't frighten me.

And despite the fact that Wyler and the team can find themselves almost entombed themselves during the digs, he said the only real danger is a potential cave-in of the tomb.

Recall petitioners silent about drive

By Kathy Betts

Less than a month away from their recall petition deadline, Upland slow-growth proponents are not saying how many signatures they have collected so far.

"I deliberately don't want to know," said recall spokeswoman Pat McDonough, who referred questions to treasurer Virginia Musick.

Despite numerous telephone calls, Musick could not be reached

"If (the amount of signatures is) good I don't want to be complacent and if it's bad I'll pull my hair out," McDonough said. "We're starting to pull in petitions that are out."

Participants in the 120-day petition drive need to collect 6,462 signatures (20 percent of Upland's 32,309 registered voters) before April 11 for each council member they recall.

Targeted for the recall are Mayor Robert Nolan and council members Rosalie Kamansky, Al Canestro and Thomas McGilloway.

In the last month, signatureseekers journeying to Upland grocery stores and through city neighborhoods have registered about 150 residents to make their signatures valid on a recall petition, McDonough said.

"That's not bad after a national election. I'm impressed with that."

McDonough believed that their sale of aluminum cans and "Recall 'em All" T-shirts and sweatshirts will off-set all campaign expenditures, including "Recall 'em All" signs and literature pointing to their four-month contention against the City Council members:

"These council members have a voting record at public hearings incompatible with (their) opinions expressed verbally and in the press prior to said hearings."

They allege the council members also "have refused to heed the will of the people regarding slow growth."

State court considering tax

By Lee Peterson

As Montclair's movie house tax fades into the sunset, Rancho Cucamonga's admissions tax awaits its own showdown in the state District Court of Appeal.

Hanging in the balance are several hundred thousand dollars in past levies that Edwards Cinema has surrendered to city coffers since the firm's Rancho Cucamonga theater opened in 1987.

Edwards attorney Lawrence Davidson said the differences between the Montclair 6 percent tax and the Rancho Cucamonga 10 percent tax should not save the latter from also being ruled unconstitutional. The same appellate court is considering the case.

Officials mixed on plan board

By Kathy Betts

Ontario-Montclair school district officials have mixed opinions about participating on Ontario's General Plan Advisory Committee — but one thing is clear: They think it is important Attitudes range from "it would be in our best interest" to "it is absolutely critical.

Pat King, assistant superintendent of school administration, told trustees recently that the yet-be-formed committee - that will give input on how Ontario should be developed in the next few years is scheduled to meet twice a month for four months on the same Thursday nights as the school board.

Don Hazen, Ontario's associate planner and project manager for the general plan update, said recently the city "is still trying to make a schedule ... We would like to have them every other Thursday night.'

City Manager Dennis Wilkins said he expected the City Council was to pick the 28-member committee of Ontario residents from 69 eligible applicants last week. The committee's first meeting was tentatively set for March 23 at Imperial Junior High School.

King told trustees he submitted an application to be on the committee by the deadline and he asked that the dates be changed so he could

"It would be in the best interest of the district to have a representative on that committee," King said. "You have to be an Ontario resident. I'm the only cabinet member that lives in Ontario.'

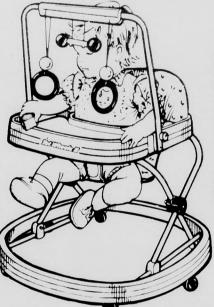

Trustee Judy Briggs recently cited the joint meeting between the City Council and the OMSD board on Feb. 28, during which new OMSD Superintendent Frank Cosca was appointed to be a non-voting liaison to Ontario's development advisory board

Briggs said "another representative of the board should be on the general plan committee.

Conventions provide comic relief

By Sarah E. Crowley

Mention the word "convention" and a very vivid stereotype immediately jumps to mind.

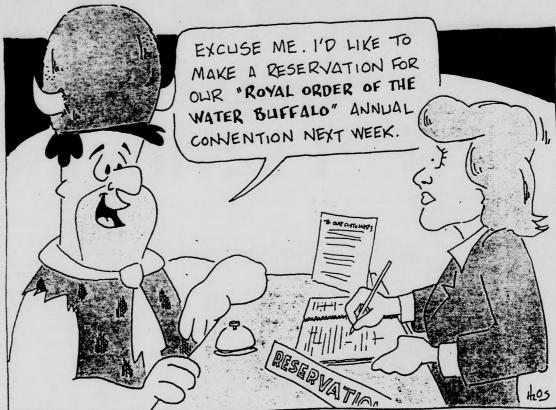

An entire hotel filled to the brim with otherwise solid citizens, who are apparently acting in a very undignified manner. Often, imagination will top these merry souls with little red fezzes, or more outlandish headgear involving buffalo heads or moose horns.

But whatever the organization or affiliation there's no denying that conventions and conferences do have that, well, let's call it a comic aspect.

Conventions are a two-way street. There are those who attend them and those who book them, and both sides have a multitude of experiences to relate. But the problem with searching for juicy anecdotes is that convention bureaus and hotels view their fun-loving clients as serious business, which means that they don't like to spread stories that might spoil sales.

Basically, convention bureaus act as as a liaison between local hotels and convention centers. The idea is to lure likely groups to the area, and solicit their business with enticing presentations.

According to one sales director at a valley bureau, it's hard work involving a high level of planning expertise, abundant enthusiasm and a lot of psychology, not to mention an exaggerated sense of humor. We'll call this director Jane, since she wished to remain anonymous. During a recent phone conversation, Jane recalled a presentation made to a statewide sporting organization.

"We were serving orange juice to the members of this group, who all wore name tags," she said. "One bunch of men all had these little plastic badges shaped like devils. And when we'd hand them a cup of juice, they'd rip off their badges and slap them on my women assistants, especially on the voluptuous ones. And in very strategic places. It was a big joke for a long time."

Not all conventions happen in hotels, of course. A good many colleges handle conferences, which often are educational in nature.

"It's a lot of fun," said Linda Roberge, special projects coordinator at Pomona College. "You never know who you'll run into. It's a challenge to figure these groups out.'

Pomona College books about six conferences every summer, and schedules a number of day seminars during the school year. Though she's supposed to be dealing with adults, Roberge sometimes has to act like a housemother with rowdy attendees.

Cities take Garb oil case to high court

By Kimberly Heinrichs

San Bernardino and Riverside counties and several inland cities are taking their case against the proposed Garb Oil tire burning plant to the California Supreme Court.

For more than two years, the agencies have been asking the courts to require an environmental impact report for the $89 million plant that would turn scrap tires into electricity on 10 acres in Rialto.

Last month, the state 4th District Court of Appeal in San Bernardino overturned a lower court decision requiring the environmental study.

Attorney Barton Gaut said his client agencies told him last week they were prepared to carry on the fight. Fontana is the only western San Bernadino County city that has financially entered the fray.

"We've got our share of smog out there and we don't need any more," Fontana Mayor Nat

"Putting a tire plant in the midst of one of the worst areas we have is just going to make it worser. We have a moral commitment to the citizens of this area that we would pursue it," he said.

The counties and cities contend that Rialto officials wrongly issued permits for the plant to be located south of the San Bernardino (10) Freeway, 16 miles from downtown Ontario.

WRITE A CLASSIFIED AD THAT WORKS!!

Give readers the information they want and get the results... YOU want.

be complete.

Put yourself in the reader's place. If you were considering buying this item what would you want to know about it? Give the item's age, condition, size, brand name and any other information needed to describe it accurately and completely.

avoid abbreviations.

A few standard abbreviations can help you save space but don't overdo it. Too many abbreviations will make your ad look like a secret coded message. Rather than trying to figure out what you're trying to say, confused readers will go on to the next ad.

include price.

Price is one of the biggest concerns of classified readers. Ads that list prices will get their attention first. Including the price will also help you avoid inquiries from readers not in your price range.

be available.

List your telephone number or address so potential buyers will know HOW to contact you. State the best hours to call so they'll know WHEN to contact you. If you're not home when an interested prospect calls, chances are he won't call back.

feel free to ask for help.

Because help is free for the asking. The Daily Report maintains a staff of professional Advisors who write dozens of ads every day. They'll be happy to help you word your ad for the best results.

WE HIRE & TRAIN REAL ESTATE AGENTS Call Vicky 983-0455 Real Estate Sales

STRAIGHT TALK It takes a commitment to achieve success. Being successful isn't worth it if you don't enjoy what you're doing. Success in real estate comes easier if you're the type of individual who sincerely wants to help another person rather than being commission hungry. A successful real estate office is a team of people who are as excited by the other agent's victories as much as their own. If you share my philosphy, I'd like to talk to you. Licensed or not, call Doug Madison at 714-981-4836
